and Lambda Expressions I'm building a generic Proxy class, and one of the requirements is that it will have a T GetPropertyValue() method. It seems like I would want a method with the following signature: public T GetPropertyValue() But the problem with this is that it's not type-safe, so you can't use a lambda expression for a parameter. So, is there a way to call a generic method with a type-safe lambda expression as a parameter? A: What about something like this: public T GetPropertyValue() { return this.GetPropertyValue(typeof(T)); } private object GetPropertyValue(Expression> expression) { var prop = expression.Body as MemberExpression; return prop.Member == null? null : prop.Member.GetValue(this); } A: You could create your own compile-time discriminated union, and use that in the method signature to create a "Type-Safe Lambda Expression": public class PropertyInfo { public T GetPropertyValue() { var t = this.Get
