Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a dust collection system that is adapted to be mounted inside a vacuum cleaning device. The dust collection system includes a dust collecting filter that is configured to filter dust by capturing and collecting the dust in the air to be sucked up by the vacuum cleaning device. 2. Description of the Related Art A dust collection system that is adapted to be mounted inside a vacuum cleaning device is often used to filter dust that is generated inside the vacuum cleaner during operation of the vacuum cleaner. The dust collection system generally includes a dust collecting filter disposed inside the body of the vacuum cleaner. The dust collecting filter is configured to capture and collect the dust in the air to be sucked up by the vacuum cleaner. The dust collecting filter generally includes a filtering member that has a filtering face adapted to be disposed at a mouth of the dust collection system, the filtering face being configured to filter the dust in the air to be sucked up by the vacuum cleaner. The dust collection filter may also include a through-hole that is formed in the filtering face to permit the removal of the dust filtered by the filtering face in the air to be sucked up. In order to improve the dust collection efficiency of the dust collection system, the filtering face of the dust collecting filter may be covered with a protective member that prevents the contact between the filtering face and the dirt. For example, Japanese Unexamined Patent Publication No. 2007-312551 proposes a dust collection filter that includes a filtering face that is covered with a protective member.Cistus ophyllus Cistus ophyllus is a species of flowering plant in the family Cistaceae. It is endemic to Portugal. Its natural habitat is rocky areas and on cliffs. It is threatened by loss of habitat. Dist
